The attraction between males and females is magnetic in origin and so is the act of conception MARIA KUMAN, Holistic Research Institute — Everything in the material world is a material body and spinning torus shaped nonlinear electromagnetic field (NEMF). It comes from the way the material world was created. The article explains the origin of the spinning in opposite direction male and female NEMF and uses nonlinear physics to illustrate that the spinning in opposite direction nonlinear electromagnetic fields (NEMFs) of males and females induce magnetic fields with opposite polarity. If so, males attract females as two magnets with opposite polarity would do or in other words the attraction between males and females is magnetic in origin. The observed dynamics of cell fertilization shows that as soon as the male DNA enters the female cell, it is attracted to the female DNA, as two magnets with opposite polarity would be. They approach each other, spin around each other and then merge together. This means that the mothers and fathers DNAs spin in opposite direction and induce magnetic fields with opposite polarity, which illustrates that the conception of each embryo is magnetic in origin, as well.

Key words: attraction males-females; magnetic attraction males-females; magnetic attraction between the sexes; conception; magnetic origin of conception.
