Recent Results From Supernova Neutrino Theory
IRENE TAMBORRA, Niels Bohr Institute

Neutrinos are key particles in core-collapse supernovae. Neutrinos affect the stellar dynamics, drive the formation of new elements, and carry detectable imprints of the supernova inner working. Recent developments on the modelling of neutrinos and their conversions in the stellar envelope will be outlined.