Grad School 101: Is Graduate School For Me?

JOSE MENDOZA-CORTES¹, Florida State University

In this panel workshop we will be discussing each of our experiences with graduate school. We will have the perspectives of current graduate students and someone who has completed the graduate school process. A variety of topics will be touched upon such as: applying to graduate school, why we choose to attend graduate school, how graduate school will and has helped us, and other similar topics as well. In order to enrich this panel discussion, we will also be answering questions from the attendees to aid in your decision making process. This panel should give you multiple perspectives on graduate school, so you can confidently answer the question “Is Graduate School For Me?”.
