Can Naturoptics, Inc. Provide Self-funding Mentored Awards for Students, Research, Athletics, Schools, and Minority use of Natural Medicine Protocols? THOMAS SAMPSON, Naturoptics, Inc. Lowell, MA, ROGER DAVID MCLEOD¹, Univ. Mass. Lowell; Naturoptics, Inc. — Naturoptics, Inc. is issuing awards nurturing causes that its late officer and board member David Matthew McLeod had actively participated in until his death. The patented property “Naturopathic method for recovery of healthy vision” has been directed entirely toward activities indicated, with all proceeds currently going to awardees and academic entities for stated purposes. The process includes mentoring and teaching awardees their impaired vision can be quickly reversed by reengaging self-repairing feedback control features that visual abuse had thwarted. Various percentages are allotted to different stages of mentored student progression; remainders will initially be directed to mutually agreed academic entities’ needs, with scholarship funding a top priority. Some activity involving research into natural tornado and earthquake events is hoped for, along with foundational questions in physics. Present board members hope that benefit to participating institutions and individuals can be brought to levels over $100,000 per year; hoped-for final benefits being allowed to proceed to at least ten times that. The process/method competes with billion dollar a year industries.
