Fourier Transform and Reflective Imaging Pyrometry GERALD STEVENS, National Security Technologies, LLC — A stationary Fourier transform pyrometer was used to record mid-wavelength IR spectra in dynamic shock experiments. The gated-IR camera used with this system was also used to record images of light produced and light reflected from shocked metals in order to constrain the dynamic emissivity and provide temperature estimates.